

If the White House bulletins can be believed, the President is gaining a little.

A lady is running for superintendent of schools in Iowa county, in this State, on the Democratic ticket.

It has been twenty-five days since the weather went back on Vennor. In that time not one of his predictions has proved correct.

They say Pocketbookwalter is personally a splendid man. He ought to be. He was in the Republican party nearly thirty years, and had good training.

The war among the surgeons at the White House should stop until the President is on his feet, and then they can go into a rough and tumble fight and thereby settle their disputes.

Candidate Bookwalter, of Ohio, has a new name, a decidedly good one. He is called the "Yearling Democrat." As he has been in the Democratic party but one year, the title is very pat.

The Republicans of Virginia should be united in one thing—to put the Bourbon element in that State under the soil. They should follow the wise example of the Wisconsin Republicans.

The Democratic State convention will probably meet as advertised. It will then have done its work, and the party will not lift its head above the surface for two years.

California is boasting of a grape vine in that State which bore this year five tons of grapes, and broke down an oak tree sixty feet high which supported it. Massachusetts furnishes the big fish story, but California is ahead on the grape.

United States Senator Plumb, of Kansas, went to that bleeding State in 1856, and started a small newspaper at Emporia. At the age of 45 he not only finds himself in the Senate, but the possessor of a fortune of three millions made out of mining in Colorado.

Dr. R. Andros has just published a handbook giving a general account of the Jews, in which it is estimated that their total population throughout the world is about 6,100,000. Only 180,000 of the race are found in Asia, 400,000 in Africa, 300,000 in America, 25,000 in Australia, and more than 5,000,000 in Europe.

A Baltimore pyrotechnist to whom Congress gave the contract for furnishing fireworks for Yorktown, will give displays on two evenings—October 18th and 19th. Among the pieces will be one representing the surrender of Cornwallis, fifty feet square. There will be 600 of the largest sky rockets ever made, and 60 12 inch shells. The display will be the most brilliant ever seen in any country.

There will be a meeting of a number of dairymen in Milwaukee next week, to organize a protective association to resist the payment of royalty claimed by Hubbard & Co., of New York. Committees were appointed to make the necessary arrangements to form the association. The royalty claimed is, on a self bandaging cheese block with tin billers, and the total amounts claimed from different dairymen is quite a large sum. The matter will be taken into the courts and there decided.

When Matthew Vassar died last week, he was worth $750,000. He gave his wife $63,000 in money and a beautiful homestead, and quite a handsome sum to the surviving brother, John Guy Vassar. The rest of the fortune was given to charitable objects. Mrs. Vassar was well pleased with her allowance, and the brother kindly and generously renounced all legacies under the will, and requests that his portion shall likewise be given to charitable purposes. "This is a rare partnership of good works, the recollection of which will be sweet in men's mouths for many a day."

There was a general scare among those who had bought coal at $7.75 or $8.00 a ton, when they heard coal had dropped in Milwaukee from $7.50 to $4.50 and $5.00. It did look as if there was going to be a general tumble, and those who had not bought their coal carried about them for a few hours a cunning smile. But this good feeling did not last long. The break in Milwaukee seemed to be of a local nature only. It was a sort of a cut-throat piece of business, and after it was tried twenty-four hours or such a matter, and lost all the money they wanted to lose, the dealers sobered off and agreed to return to their own prices. Eight dollars is not bad for coal, but about $6.50 would be profitable—to the consumer.

Now that poor Jennie Cramer is dead, the ladies of New Haven are up in arms to think the press of the country calls her "the belle" of the city. They say she belonged to the third rate people and therefore could not be "the belle." In New Haven the people are divided into grades, and carefully, too. The first grade comprises the Yale college, or the "culchawed" ones, according to a wide-awake man of this city; the second class is the small business element, and the third class the society of mechanics. Among this last class, it is insisted, Miss Cramer was the belle par excellence, but the society ladies will not admit that she was entitled to recognition as a belle. It is true, however, that the daughter of the cigar maker was beautiful enough to attract the attention of nearly all New Haven, and the ladies themselves were more or less disturbed by the shining beauty of Jennie Cramer.

The opening of the new line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway from Monroe to Gratiot will take place next Monday, when the first passenger train will be taken through from Milwaukee to Plattville. The regular Monroe train will leave Milwaukee at the usual time—4:10 in the afternoon—and will run directly through to Plattville by the way of Burlington and Mineral Point, reaching Plattville at 11:5. The Madison Democrat says the officials of the road will take part in the first trip, the train being in charge of Conductor Wadsworth. The returning train leaves Mineral Point at 4:40 a. m., Gratiot at 5:40, Monroe at 6:10, and Milwaukee at 10:55, making connection with the through train to Chicago. The trains for the present will be in charge of Conductors Dean and Wadsworth, who have been so long on the road, and have done so much faithful service. The line is also being extended from Gratiot, in Lafayette county, to Shullsburg, to which point it will be completed toward the close of September, and regular trains will probably be running by the first of October. The track-laying is progressing finely now. That part of the State which has been so long deprived of railway facilities will now be brought in direct connection with Milwaukee, which will prove a boon to both the business men and farmers.

Some of the Southern States are discussing the temperance question with a good deal of interest, but no legislation has been effected that will lessen drinking. But there is another question which is of as much importance to the South as that of the suppression of the liquor traffic. The carrying of deadly weapons has been the cause of many hundreds of deaths in the South. Personal quarrels are more frequent there than in the North, and in the heat of passion, when all self-control is gone, and when a man is hardly responsible for his own acts, he draws his knife or his revolver, and his victim bites the dust. It has been estimated that nearly one-half of the murders in the Southern States are the result of spasmodic passion and the ever present knife and pistol. When a man is inflamed by rage he has no time to think and never considers the consequences of his murderous acts. He has his knife or his revolver with him, and is led to do what he would not do and could not do if these weapons were not about his person. In a large majority of cases murderers under these circumstances could not be led to commit such a deed in their sober moments. They are rushed into the crime by the very fact of having about them deadly weapons. The way to lessen these murders and to protect life and shield society is to make it a criminal offense to carry concealed weapons. If this were done there would be fewer murders in the South among both whites and blacks, and fewer executions. There is a good deal of carrying these weapons in the North, and this should be discouraged, but the criminal results are not so numerous as in the South. This matter has been brought to the attention of the Legislatures in the South but they have lacked the courage to take rigorous action in the matter.

The railway extensions in the Southwest are marvelous for their vigor and brilliant achievements. The system which are now being pushed forward from the Southwest through New Mexico, Arizona, and on to California, are among the most important in this country. The Atlantic & Pacific road is to be energetically extended across Arizona to San Francisco. The road is now in operation for 250 miles westward from Albuquerque, and its completion to San Francisco, 900 miles, is an assured fact within two years. The money is in the treasury for its extension to the "Needles," on the Colorado river. This company is able, unaided by outside persons, to complete its line to the "Needles," and will perform that construction with all possible dispatch; but from that point to San Francisco, 500 miles, the road will probably be built under a joint ownership. In that event the Texas & Pacific would use the route of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe from El Paso to Albuquerque, 250 miles, and the Atlantic & Pacific, by joint occupation, from Albuquerque to the "Needles," where its joint ownership would begin.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe company is pushing the construction of its line from Beson, 170 miles west of Deming, between which stations it has joint occupation of the Southern Pacific track, southwesterly through the Tombstone mining country, and is tracked for 50 miles and graded for a hundred miles, and the rails are now being placed at the rate of a mile a day. When this branch is finished, which will be on the first of next May, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe system will consist of 1,650 miles. When it is considered what this company has done during the past three years to develop the Southwest and connect the Pacific with the Mississippi Valley, it will be plainly discovered to be one of the most remarkable railway enterprises this country has ever seen.

A LONG ROAD.

The President Has a Long Road to Travel Before He is Out of Danger

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—There have been no new complications in the President's case to-day, and his physicians say he is progressing as rapidly as could be expected. He is extremely weak, and it is no new difficulty presents itself, he has still a long road to travel before he is out of danger. The members of the cabinet and others who called at the White House this morning, were informed that the President had passed a very comfortable night, and that though the swelling in his neck continued, it had given him no pain for several hours.

Attorney General MacVane, in speaking of the trouble in the parotid gland, said that it indicated a violent condition of the blood, but he did not think it was necessarily a dangerous complication, and the physicians assured him that it was not. "I think," he said, "that all things considered, the President's condition this morning is highly satisfactory."

Postmaster General James, who was just leaving the mansion, said that he was "delighted with the morning bulletin."

Miss Mollie Garfield, who stood at an upper window, looking out on the steps, caught sight of the Postmaster General's happy countenance, and said: "It's such good news, isn't it, Mr. James?"

"Yes, indeed, Miss Mollie, it is very good news this morning, very good," and the buoyant-hearted Cabinet officer was off.

Mr. Brown and his assistants were busy opening the morning mail.

The President has passed a comfortable night, and is doing well this morning," said the secretary, busy with a lot of letters.

"The mail seems to keep up despite the President's illness," said the correspondent.

"These letters are all for Mrs. Garfield. I think there are a hundred of them. Most of them are letters of sympathy, but some contain receipts and advice, while others contain offers of assistance. They must all be briefed and filed, and the more important ones answered."

To-day at the White House was an uneventful one. The watchers at the bedside of the patient were vigilant and watchful. They knew not what turn the night might take at any moment, and were resolved to be at the alert. Liquid nourishment was administered at more frequent intervals than yesterday, and it was all retained. The swelling in the parotid gland ceased to cause any perceptible annoyance, and Dr. Bliss said at noon that the swelling had greatly subsided.

At this time the President is naturally very weak, though General Swann says his condition is favorable to-day there is absolutely no telling what it may be to-morrow.

VICE PRESIDENT ARTHUR.

New York, Aug. 19.—The Evening News tells the story of the conference of Republicans at the residence of Vice President Arthur to consider the subject of the Vice President assuming the duties of President, and gives the names of those present. Two of those named were seen to-night by a reporter. Colonel Bliss emphatically denied that there was any such conference at General Arthur's house. Senator Logan positively denied the truth of the report.

He said he had not seen General Arthur since he had been in the city, and did not even know where he lived. When asked his opinion, he said he had only to remark: "You can say I know nothing about any conference in this city."

The reporter made an effort to see Vice President Arthur at his house, but a servant stated that he would not see any one. A card was sent up, but General Arthur returned word that he was about going to bed.

OYSTERS.

The Delicious Bivalve Will be Scarce.

New York, Aug. 19.—Wholesale dealers here believe that oysters will be dearer this year (partly for the reason that peaches are dearer) because of the exceptionally severe winter of 1880-'81. Along the shores of the Delaware Bays the thermometer sank as low as 29 degrees below zero last winter, and the same cold which killed the peach trees in January and February covered the oyster beds with thick ice, which "smothered" the oysters as the oyster men say, and when the ice broke up it raked the beds and tore the oysters from their moorings. A short crop on the Chesapeake would, however, not affect our market seriously were it not for failure elsewhere. Many Southern oysters come here when half grown, and this autumn's supply is already fatigued near New York. The oysters now in the market are Southern oysters transplanted in this manner. The fact that the Prince's Bay and Staten Island beds have been invaded by the bore worm, a deadly parasite, is more serious.

TROUBLE EXAGGERATED.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Governor Sheldon, of New Mexico, leaves Washington to-night for New Mexico. He had a conference to-day with Secretary Kirkwood and with Secretary Lincoln and General Sherman in regard to the Indian troubles in the Territory. Orders were sent this afternoon to the commandants to pursue the hostile Indians, disregarding territorial or reservation lines, but to take care not to disturb or annoy peaceful Indians. Governor Sheldon said that he could raise several companies in the Territories if the department could furnish the necessary money, but this could not be done. Governor Sheldon says the force of hostile are not numerous, and consist of stragglers from no one know where. They are in the Jornada del Muerto or Jornada del Muerto region, and the Territory has two companies of militia operating against them already. The governor hopes soon to reduce them to submission or death.

YULE WIPED OUT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—A Victoria dispatch says the fire at Yule was under control at 8 o'clock last night. The ruin is most complete. Heavy stocks and fine buildings have been swept away. The loss is variously estimated at from $300,000 to $400,000. The fire crossed the street at an early stage, and destroyed buildings on both sides, together with goods that had been saved from buildings on the other side of the street. All the best buildings except the church and the Hudson Bay company's store and buildings and the warehouses of the railway are gone. Only one hotel is left standing.

BRAZEN IMPUDENCE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Mayor Killoch announces himself as a candidate for Congress at the next State election.

LUCY L. BARRETT.

ROCKFORD, Aug. 19.—Miss Lucy L. Barrett, the noted elocutionist of this city, who is well known in Chicago and throughout this section of the country, died at 11 o'clock this morning in the 19th year of her age. No sadder event has occurred for many a day, for the deceased had just finished four years hard work devoted to the training of her wonderful voice, and had but recently returned from Chicago where she had been receiving instruction from Prof. W. C. Lyman. Miss Barrett has given several entertainments in this city and adjoining places, and has also appeared in the music hall in Chicago. She has always been well received, gaining at each place the highest acclamations. She was born at Chippewa Falls, Wis., December 27, 1862, and removed with her parents to this place about six years ago. The funeral will occur Sunday afternoon.

TAXES PAID.

MADISON, Aug. 19.—The semi-annual license tax on the Wisconsin business of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad company was paid into the State treasury to-day—$29,357.45—and is an increase of about 25 per cent over the amount paid one year ago. The year's tax on the Wisconsin business of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad company was paid into the State treasury to-day—$29,357.45—and is an increase of about 25 per cent over the amount paid one year ago. A Baptist Minister's Experience.

I am a Baptist minister, and before I even thought of being a clergyman, I graduated in medicine, but left a lucrative practice for my present profession, 40 years ago. I was for many years a sufferer from quinsy. "Thomas' Electric Oil" cured me. I was also troubled with hoarseness, and "Thomas' Electric Oil" always relieved me. My wife and child had diphtheria, and "Thomas' Electric Oil" cured them. And if taken in time it will cure seven times out of ten. I am confident it is a cure for the most obstinate cold or cough, and if anyone will take a small teaspoon and a half full of the oil, and rub it into the throat with the spoon in one nostril and draw the oil out of the spoon into the head by sniffing as hard as they can until the oil falls over into the throat, and practice that twice a week, I don't care how offensive their head may be, it will clean it out and cure their catarrh. For diphtheria and scarlet fever, I have done wonders of my certain knowledge. It is the only medicine that I have ever felt like recommending, and I am very anxious to see it in every place, for I tell you that I would not be without it in my house for any consideration. I am now suffering with a pain like rheumatism in my right limb, and nothing relieves me like Thomas' Electric Oil.

$55,000 Found and Restored by a Brakeman.

Kingston, N. Y. Freeman.

Col. Bryson, of No. 5 Wall street, New York City, took the Summit special 6:35 Ulster & Delaware Railroad train for Poughkeepsie at this city last evening, and put up at the Tremper House. Just before retiring he discovered that he had lost his wallet, and in great haste he procured a horse and wagon and followed the train as far as Dean's Corners, where he overtook it.

After the train had left Poughkeepsie, Elmer Emmett, a brakeman, was walking through one of the coaches, and seeing a wallet lying on the floor picked it up. Imagine his feelings when, on opening it, he found $55,000 in Government bonds and several hundred dollars in greenbacks contained in it. He said nothing to any one about it.

When Col. Bryson arrived at Dean's Corners he acquainted Conductor Herdman with his loss, and together they searched through the train without avail. When they were about giving up the search they met Emmett, and he asked them what they were searching for, when Col. Bryson said $50,000. Emmett inquired how it had been lost, and on a correct description of the pocketbook by the owner, the purse was produced and given to the Col. The latter gentleman was extremely grateful for the recovery.

A True Fish Story.

All the big and biggest fish appear to have surrounded this season to willing captors. A country hotel's guest went forth to fish, and hooked over a wide country, he splashed himself with brook mud, tore his clothing and hair in underbrush, and at the close looked like a volunteer at the close of Bull Run. At night he strode up to the hotel and exhibited thirteen trout to the veranda's occupants, and related how easy the trout came to him. The line, and how infernal for the result was compared with what he usually accomplished. At that moment a boy came up well out of breath, and exclaimed: "Mister, ma says I can't sell yer them fish; they's promised to another man; here's yer money."

"I HAVE SUFFERED beyond endurance," "My life has been a burden," and "I have been denied the pleasure of society." Extracts from testimonials of those cured of skin and scrofulous humors by the Cuticura Remedies.
